25X1 (2) [] one river gunboat at International Dockyard, under repair, with the hull painted in red lead. The gunboat was believed to be an ex-British vessel sunk in the Yangtze River and later salvaged.

d. Corvettes

25X1 (1) [] two Flower Class corvettes, equipped with dome-type radar, at Woosung Naval Wharf.

e. LCI

25X1 (1) [] three LCI's followed by two ML's, in line one behind the other, patrolling Woosung Bar.

25X1 3. [] the HO Ping [] armed with a Bofors-type gun at the stern and carrying Chinese Communist troops, cleared Wayside Wharf in Shanghai. The ship was painted grey. [] the ship was back at the Wayside Wharf in Shanghai.

Foochow

25X1 4. Three newly built ML's³ were alongside the wharf at Kuant'ou (N 26-08, E 119-34). The wharf at Kuant'ou has recently been repaired. Three ML's of the same type were anchored about eight miles further up the Min River

Wenchow

25X1 5. [] six newly built ML's³ were anchored at Wenchow. At 1500 hours on 4 March a review of Chinese Communist troops was held at Wenchow. Three unarmed contingents participated: a contingent of approximately 186 persons, including 33 women, in Chinese Communist uniforms; a contingent of 330 in Chinese Communist uniforms; and a contingent of 100 in blue Chinese Communist naval uniforms, including 30 officers and petty officers. The town was placarded with, "Welcome to the Chinese People's Liberation Army Guerrilla Mission."
